YOUR BOOKING PATH

Today: 7 taps before she's asked her name. Ours: 5, and she's booked.

On a phone, Book Online hides in the menu and sends her to a separate Zenoti store: location, service, provider, time, then Book Reservation, before Zenoti asks who she is. Nothing along the way asks what she wants done.

CONSULT BOOKING

More booked consults from the traffic you already have

Today every Book Online button sends visitors off your site to booking.lumieremedspa.com, a Zenoti store, and on a phone the button is hidden in the menu. The homepage form only asks for a name and email, and no form asks what clients want. Four changes raise the share of visitors who book, starting in month 1.

1

Start the form in the homepage hero

The first screen asks one easy question, so booking starts where visitors already are.

2

Ask about them, not the menu

Clients pick a goal like lines or volume, and your injectors choose the treatment.

3

Easy questions first, time last

Goal, location and contact details come first, then a time from your Zenoti calendar. At LaserAway, A/B tests showed easy questions first led more people to finish.

4

One form everywhere

The same short form on every treatment page, specials page and blog post, for all four locations.

WHAT IT'S WORTH

More of the visitors you already have, booking

No new traffic needed. The fastest win is turning more of today's visitors into booked consults.

2-3×

More visitors who book

One short form with easy questions first, in place of the Book Online link that drops visitors into the full Zenoti service menu. The upside depends on today's booking rate, which we'll measure in week 1.
